- request a copy of your region's statistics on the problems and needs of callers or specialized reports on community resources
- request a free brochure on the Statewide I&R System

In addition, each regional center has used local resources to provide additional services. Availability and cost vary by region. In some regions, you can:

- ask for a guide to frequently used services
- read a detailed published directory of human services in your local library or buy it for your organization
- view an on-line database of regional services
- buy a self-installing searchable PC version of the regional database
- purchase mailing labels addressed to human service organizations
